

AITP Silent Auction at ASU

Written by Haley Werth

Tuesday, 15 March 2011 13:08

An Appalachian State University student organization, the Association of Information Technology Professionals (AITP), is holding their 5th annual Silent Auction this coming Wednesday, March 16 from 4:00-6:00 PM. The auction will offer locally donated items, gift cards, and services from all over the High Country. It will be located in ASU's Plemmons Student Union, in the Price Lake room on the second floor. AITP holds this auction to subsidize the cost for students to attend their National Collegiate Conference. Students will be representing the College of Business in one or more collegiate competitions. For the past four years, AITP members have won First and/or Second place at the National level in one of these competitions! Please come out to support these dedicated students and the Association of Information Technology Professionals.