

Military Support Group

Written by Gannon

Saturday, 19 September 2009 13:20

I would like to start a group for military members, past and present, who would like to talk about any issues they may be having. Also, I would like to invite family members who may have lost a loved one in Iraq, Afghanistan, Vietnam, or other conflicts or wars. I realize that family members of service members can be just as affected as the service members themselves. I have no meeting place or meeting time. I would like to get some input from people on GBR, and see what they think. Please keep political comments out. This is not here to complain about why we are in Iraq and Afghanistan, but a discussion to help us join together and support each other. I would really appreciate any input, and any advice. As a veteran myself, I know that there are no groups like this in the area, or at least none that I know of. I look forward to hearing from everyone!