

Bio-Energies Fire Update

Written by

Saturday, 25 August 2007 20:00

Firefighters in Lenoir had a rough Saturday- a fire broke out Saturday afternoon at the Foothills Bio-Energies Plant.

The plant converts vegetable oil and animal fats into bio-diesel fuel. Two large tanks containing vegetable oil did catch fire, but the flames did not spread to the building itself. No one was working at the time, officials say. No cause has been determined.