

Still in Stage 1

Written by

Wednesday, 05 September 2007 09:20

Weekend rains weren't enough to bring Boone out of Stage 1 Voluntary Water Conservation Conditions according to Public Utilities Director Rick Miller.

"The forecast isn't calling for any rain in the near future, so I recommended to the town manager and the town council and the mayor that we stay in stage one for right now and continue to monitor, but the rain definitely helped us out a little," Miller said.

Citizens are asked to continue conserve by limiting their landscape watering and shower times.