

Bishops oppose sex education measure

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Tuesday, 15 May 2007 05:26

North Carolina's Roman Catholic bishops made their opinions on abstinence education known in the General Assembly yesterday. Bishops appealed to House Speaker Joe Hackney to block action on a bill that would change the state's sex education curriculum. The measure would expand the programs that currently concentrate on abstinence until marriage to cover more details about sexually transmitted diseases, contraception, sex assault and abuse.