

Land use plan for West Jefferson

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Sunday, 22 July 2007 20:06

The Town of West Jefferson Planning Board is developing the town's first land use plan.

The plan will allow citizens of West Jefferson to make choices about how land development and redevelopment should occur. The plan will provide long-range recommendations for the coordinated development of property within the planning jurisdiction of the town. The primary mission of the planning board is to provide a vision for improving the town's quality of life. Two public meetings will provide a chance for citizens to provide input. The first meeting should be late summer or early fall. Citizens in attendance will be able to vote on the land use planning objectives most important to them and help form recommendations on future development in the town.