Cabarrus County commissioner Coy C. Privette has resigned as president of the Christian Action League after being served charges related to prostitution.

Privette was suspended Thursday until the court case is resolved. Privette resigned on Saturday. Privette also announced plans to step down from his leadership post with the State Baptist Convention of North Carolina. Privette, a retired Baptist minister, is a former convention president. The Republican commissioner was charged with six counts of aiding and abetting prostitution by renting a hotel room and paying for sexual acts with 32-year-old Tiffany Denise Summers, who was charged with six counts of prostitution. All charges are misdemeanors.
