The Florida man who jumped 70 feet off of a waterfall in the North Carolina Mountains died of an apparent accident according to an autopsy report.

The Asheville Citizen-Times reported that the autopsy showed 49-year-old Ronald Conrad Brown's death on August 31st was caused by a "non-suicidal jump into a natural pool."

Brown died when he jumped 70 feet from the top of Looking Glass Falls into six feet or less of water. The report stated he also had a blood-alcohol level of 0.29 percent. That BAC is more than three times the legal limit for driving.

According to the Asheville Citizen-Times, the autopsy report stated investigators found no evidence of foul play or suicidal intent.
