The first annual Fine Arts Festival hosted by White Hart Woods in West Jefferson is looking for entries.

The festival is set for July 21 and 22. Pieces will be judged by Turchin Center curator Hank Foreman, according to coordinator Raney Rogers. There are spaces for booths and places to hang paintings. It's the perfect venue, according to Rogers.

Applications will be accepted through June 11. There is a $25 dollar application fee, but according to Rogers, it's something local artists are going to want to be a part of. For more information, contact Rogers at 336-246-3388.
