

Local business wins 7 national awards

Written by Tom Lanier
Friday, 08 June 2007 05:46

A local advertising and public relations firm has won seven national awards for its work with energy and telecommunications utilities.

G & T Communications won six national awards recently for their work with two electric co-operatives in Ohio and one in California. The seventh award was for an ad campaign the company developed for Skyline/Skybest.

G&T Communications' president, Maggie Tilley, said it's more important for them to support their clients than to win awards, but said it sure is nice when it happens. G & T Communications, now in its 11th year, is located in downtown Boone.