

Vatican urges against road rage

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Tuesday, 19 June 2007 19:28

Yesterday, the Vatican addressed pastoral needs of motorists, telling motorists to be charitable to others on the highways and refrain from road rage.

The document, Guidelines for the Pastoral Care of the Road, came about because driving has become such a big part of contemporary life, according to Cardinal Renato Martino. It urged drivers to avoid “primitive” behaviors of impoliteness and cursing, as well as not to drink and drive. The document also encouraged prayer along the route, saying recitation of the Rosary will not distract the driver’s attention.