

ASU names Interim Dean

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Tuesday, 26 June 2007 07:46

Appalachian State University Provost Stan Aeschleman announced today that Dr. Glenda Treadaway has been named interim dean of the College of Fine and Applied Arts.

Treadaway will replace Dr. Mark Estep, who is leaving ASU to become president of Southwest Virginia Community College in Richlands, Virginia. Chair of the Department of Communication at ASU since June, 2005, she holds a Ph.D in rhetoric from Ohio University.

Dr. Janice Pope, professor and assistant chair in the Department of Communication, has been appointed interim chair in the meantime. Pope has been a member of the communication faculty since 1995.

We'll have more details about Treadaway's appointment tomorrow.