Appalachian State men's tennis stumbled against Northern Illinois State University on Wednesday afternoon, recording its seventh loss of the season in Orlando, Fla.

The Mountaineers (2-7) remained competitive against the Huskies (10-5), despite recording a loss.

Steve Lake and Steve Karendal won their match at No. 3, 8-1, but NIU clinched the doubles point for an early advantage following No. 1 and No. 2 victories from Dor Amir/Axel Lagerlof (8-6) and Max Phillips/Simon Formont (8-5).

The Mountaineers headed into singles action, where they managed to secure three victories in No.'s 3, 4, and 6 flights. Women's Tennis Stumbles Against Gardner-Webb

Appalachian State's women's tennis suffered a setback against non-conference opponent Gardner-Webb University in a 5-2 road loss.

With the win, the Runnin' Bulldogs (3-6, 0-2 Big South) snapped a two-loss streak, while the Mountaineers (9-3, 2-0 SoCon) halted a three-win streak, which included key victories against SoCon foes Chattanooga and Samford.

Appalachian quickly found itself with a 1-0 lead after doubles play. Ellie Linsell and Mackenzie LaSure fell 8-4 in No. 1 to Erica White and Jenny Lunde, who combined to grab their team-leading sixth doubles win of the season. The Mountaineers picked up an 8-2 win courtesy of No. 2 pair Jennifer Ansari and Clare Cox, while winning by default at No. 3 doubles to grasp an early 1-0 lead.

Moving into singles action, tiebreaks would be the deciding factor at No. 1 and No. 3, as GWU's White managed to win the first set against Linsell 7-6 (2). Brianna Armellino dropped set one to GWU's No. 3 player, Lunde, who also took it to a tiebreak 7-6 (3) in the first set, but finished Armellino in the second at 7-6 (3), 6-3 for the win.

Appalachian did not play a No. 6 player, thereby earning the point by default and forcing the Runnin' Bulldogs to win at least four matches, as would be the case when GWU rallied in No.'s
