The Appalachian State baseball team won its third consecutive game as the Mountaineers knocked off High Point University 4-3 in 11 innings at Smith Stadium/Beaver Field on Wednesday night.

David Towarnicky's line drive to center field drove in Rand Smith with the winning run. The ASU bullpen turned in a solid effort as well, giving up two earned runs on six hits over eight innings of work. Taylor Miller picked up his first win of the year with two innings of scoreless relief. With the win, the Apps improve to 11-15 on the year. Offensively, the Mountaineers pounded out 14 hits. Nick DeRose paced the attack with three hits. Wes Hobson, Chris Alessandria and Jeremy Dowdy each had two hits apiece. ASU travels to Furman for a three-game weekend series beginning Friday night in Greenville, SC. Our next broadcast of ASU baseball will come your way next Tuesday as the Mountaineers take on Tennessee in Knoxville. The air time, 6:40 pm on WATA.
