

Grandfather heat records broken- Again

Written by

Sunday, 12 August 2007 20:00

Last week was all about the heat- record breaking heat. Friday marked the fourth day in a row that the daily high temperature record was broken at Grandfather Mountain. Friday's high of 79 degrees broke the previous August 10 th record of 78 degrees set in 1980. While the heat may have annoyed mountain residents, officials at Grandfather say tourists from warmer parts of the state had a great time last week. A statement released from Grandfather Mountain said visitors loved "the Mountain's summer breezes."