An eclectic mix of developers, business people, and citizens were present today to welcome Boone Point to Boone. The first mixed use residential of its kind in Boone, Boone Point is something to be excited about according to developer Lucien Wilkins.

He says it provides a new face to Boone's gateway.

The project will have underground parking, retail, medical and dining facilities onsite, as well as residential condos.

Mayor Loretta Clawson shares his enthusiasm.

"I hope this is a first in what I hope can be more projects like this," she said. She hopes this development helps make Boone a more "walkable" community.

The project should be complete this time next year. According to Wilkins, local, regional and national retailers have expressed an interest in Boone Point.
