

Diseased Deer

Written by

Monday, 17 September 2007 20:31

---

The North Carolina Wildlife Resources Commission announced yesterday that deer herds in several locations statewide are experiencing an outbreak of hemorrhagic disease.

The disease has been observed in deer in both the western piedmont and the mountains. Biologists assure state citizens that it poses no threat to humans.