Sugar Mountain's race proved victorious for newcomer Nancy Crawford.

Long-time incumbent Ed Hardin (59 votes) looks to have lost his seat on the village council. We spoke with Hardin Monday and he admitted that campaign 2007 was a challenge.

"I've never had a really close race. I've been involved for nearly 25 years now, and I just- this is the first time I've ever felt like I had a really close race."

Newcomer Nancy Crawford slid into his place with 73 votes.

"I feel very happy. It was a hard won battle."

She's ready to get to work. Crawford plans to help create ordinances to help control growth on the mountain.
