

Snow Structures; Nature Made, Man Made

Written by Steve Frank

Friday, 14 February 2014 15:34

Sometimes you take lemons and make lemonade. Sometimes you take snow piles and make, well, a snow fort. As the warmer than expected Friday temperatures begin to melt the snow from mid-week, there is still a lot of the white stuff to either get in the way, as this snowdrift, described by Tom Lanier as being at least 6 feet tall, stopped the radio guy in his tracks on Blackberry Road in the predawn hours today. The snow fort was submitted by Norris Enterprises, who spotted the rather chilly shelter behind the Boone Post Office seems to be seeking a new route and maybe a new zip code. Weather over the next few days should take care of both.