

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Monday, 09 July 2007 06:01

The Town of Seven Devils plans to hold its regular town council meeting this evening at 5:30, and the golf course will be on the agenda.

The Town of Seven Devils is debating whether or not to obtain the former golf course from its owners, the Cottom family, by eminent domain. Several residents have expressed their desire to have a golf course. They claim property values went down when the course closed. Cottom claims the property is an investment for his children- and does not want to sell. In fact, he would prefer to expand Hawksnest Ski Resort, a request the Town has denied him in the past. Concerned citizens are encouraged to attend tonight's meeting.