

Crank up your cauldrons- Harry Potter is hours away!

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Thursday, 19 July 2007 20:22

Tonight's the night- muggles and wizards alike await the midnight release of J.K. Rowling's final installment in her acclaimed Harry Potter series: Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows. Will Harry die? Is Snape really evil? Hardcore fans will know the answers by this time tomorrow.

The earliest you can get a book is midnight at Black Bear Books- but if you haven't preordered, you may be out of luck. Come enjoy the festivities anyway, however. Black Bear Books will be open all day- but the real party is expected to begin around 9:30 tonight. Waldenbooks in the Boone Mall will have books on sale starting at 7 a.m. tomorrow, and features a party of its own.

Lucky muggles may be able to obtain copies at Wal-mart- but the advice is the same- come early.

Release parties encourage you to dress up as your favorite character and mingle with the wizards. Don't forget your wands, and happy reading.