Following last season's 24 wins and Colleg Insider.com Tournament appearance, Appalachian State University men's basketball was selected to repeat as SoCon North Division champion in 2010-11, according to a vote by the league's coaches.

Senior Donald Sims (Gaffney, S.C./Fork Union) was selected to the preseason all-SoCon squad.

Head coach Jason Capel's experienced Mountaineer squad received 9-of-12 first-place votes and 64 total points to take the division, ahead of Western Carolina, which received the remaining three first-place votes and 54 points. Chattanooga was picked third with 49 points, followed by UNC Greensboro (31), Elon (29) and Samford (21).

Wofford earned 10 first-place votes and 65 total points to be selected first in the South, followed by College of Charleston with 54 points and the two remaining five-place votes. Davidson (49), The Citadel (29), Furman (26) and Georgia Southern (23) round out the division.

2010 Southern Conference Malcolm U. Pitt Player of the Year Sims was ASU's only honoree on the list of 10 players, while CofC's Andrew Goude-lock was named the preseason Player of the Year for a second season in a row.

College of Charleston, Davidson and Wofford each placed two players on the squad, while The Citadel, Elon and Furman joined ASU with one each.

Mountaineer fans have the opportunity to meet the division favorites on Friday evening from 7-9 p.m. at the Holmes Center for Mountaineer Madness, before the Apps play their first competition of the season next week. ASU then hosts Lees-McRae for its lone exhibiton game on Thursday, November 4 at 7 p.m.

The regular season tips off on Nov. 12 at Tulsa.
