Evangelist Billy Graham, 92, father of Franklin Graham of Samaritan's Purse, remains in an Asheville hospital today, being treated for pneumonia. Graham spokesman Larry Ross said doctors don't believe his condition is life-threatening. The Charlotte Observer reports no changes in his condition overnight, and officials say they don't expect to issue updates until later today. The elder Graham was taken to Mission Hospital, near his Montreat home, Wednesday morning after experiencing what Ross called "a pulmonary challenge."
