Appalachian State volleyball head coach Matt Ginipro announced the addition of four players for the 2012 season on Saturday, Nov. 12.

The signing class is comprised of four high school players from Georgia, Kansas, Pennsylvania and Tennessee, all of whom earned all-state or all-area honors during their prep careers.

"Our 2012 class is an outstanding one and one that fills the holes we will have after the graduation of our tremendous senior class this year, said Ginipro. "Paige, Emily, Hailey and Jess bring the skills and competitiveness that will keep moving Appalachian State volleyball forward. They also have the personalities that our fans will love to see on the court during our matches.

"Lastly, they are fantastic young women who come from great families and will be excellent representatives of the Appalachian State community."

The incoming class includes Paige Brown (Overland Park, Kan./St. James Academy), Emily Corrigan (Johns Creek, Ga./Chattahoochee), Jess Keller (Swarthmore, Pa./Strath Haven) and Hailey Kerr (Collierville, Tenn./Collierville).
