A look at former Appalachian State University football players' performances in Week 15 of the National Football League season:

Offensive lineman Daniel Kilgore appeared in his first career regular-season game for the San Francisco 49ers' and helped pave the way for the 49ers to rush for 100 yards in the 20-3 win over the Pittsburgh Steelers.

D.J. Smith started his third-straight game at linebacker for the Green Bay Packers. Smith tallied nine total tackles including six solo tackles and one tackle for a loss in the Packers 19-14 setback to the Kansas City Chiefs.

Wide receiver Armanti Edwards completed his second career pass for 11 yards and returned one punt for one yard in the Carolina Panthers 28-13 victory over the Houston Texans.

Defensive end Jason Hunter recorded one tackle in the Denver Broncos' 41-23 loss to the New England Patriots.

Finally, safety Cory Lynch contributed one special teams tackle in the Tampa Bay Buccaneers 31-15 setback to the Dallas Cowboys.
