Appalachian State University women's golf inked Madalyn Davis (Marion, N.C./McDowell) for the 2012-13 campaign, head coach Heather Brown announced on Wednesday. Davis graduates from Marion, N.C.'s McDowell High School

this spring and will enroll at ASU in the fall.

"Madalyn is a motivated self-starter with great work ethic and tremendous character," Brown said. "I am looking forward to her presence on campus as well as on the course."

Davis earned all-conference honors as a junior and senior for head coach Charles Webber at McDowell, and also was named the team's Most Valuable Player three times. She served as the team's captain twice and as a co-captain one year as well. For her efforts in leading her squad to a league championship in the fall, she was named the Mountain Athletic 4A/3A Conference Player of the Year.

Davis averaged 36 strokes per nine-hole round as a senior and carded an 18-hole round of 66 at Asheville Municipal and added a 33 (-3) on her home course as a junior. The daughter of Lisa Wyatt, she earned letters in basketball and soccer and plans to major in athletic training at Appalachian. Davis joins Salisbury, N.C. native Lily Yatawara in the 2012 incoming class, who signed last fall.

The Mountaineers placed fifth in the 2012 Southern Conference Tournament and return five players for 2012-13, including four rising seniors.
