The National Basketball Association released its schedule for the 2013-14 season on Wednesday. The season officially begins on Tuesday, October 29 with the two-time champion Miami Heat taking on the Chicago Bulls at the American Airlines Arena in Miami, Fl. On that same night, the Los Angeles Lakers will open the season taking on their crosstown rivals, the Los Angeles Clippers at Staples Center.

The Charlotte Bobcats, who will be renamed the Charlotte Hornets beginning in 2014-15, officially open the season against the Houston Rockets on the road on Wednesday, October 30. The Bobcats take on the Cleveland Cavaliers in their home opener on Friday, November 1. Carmelo Anthony and the New York Knicks come to town on Friday, November 8; LaBron James and the Heat come to town on Saturday, November 16; Stephen Curry and the Golden State Warriors, who will become the San Francisco Warriors in 2016-17, come to town on December 9; Kobe Bryant and the Lakers invade Charlotte on December 14; Kevin Durant and the Oklahoma City Thunder play the Bobcats in Charlotte on December 27.

The Bobcats will also play the Chicago Bulls at home on January 25, and the San Antonio Spurs on February 8.
