Appalachian State University volleyball captured its final regular-season tournament victory after back-to-back wins over Denver and UT Arlington on Saturday night at Varsity Gym. The Mountaineers (9-5) hosted the Black & Gold Challenge in its final round of competition before heading into conference play. Despite dropping a 3-2 loss to East Carolina on Friday, Appalachian earned victories over Denver (6-7) and UT Arlington (6-6) on day two to grab the tournament title.

Emily Corrigan's (Johns Creek, Ga./Chattahooche) 28 kills helped Appalachian State University volleyball cap off day two of the Black & Gold Challenge with a 3-2 (23-25, 27-25, 25-23, 20-25, 15-13) win over Denver in one of its most thrilling and tightly contested matches to-date.

Corrigan registered a double-double, her third straight, collecting 28 kills and 12 digs, along with Paige Brown (Overland Park, Kan./St. James Academy), who nabbed a double-double off of her 54 assists and 13 digs. Two other App players recorded 10-plus digs, led by libero Meghan Mahoney's (Leawood, Kan./Blue Valley) 25 to go along with Lauren Brown's 12.

The Pioneers (6-7) would lead by as many as six in the first set before four straight terminations from Corrigan would tie the frame at 23. Following a Denver timeout, Brea Muhle and Moni Corrujedo would lay a pair of kills to take the first set (25-23).

The Mountaineers (9-5) trailed late into the second set, again, by as many as six points with Corrigan rallying the comeback to 24 all. The two squads would trade scores (25-25) before two Nola Beasley attack errors cost Denver the set and gave Appalachian the 27-25 win.

Following a tightly contested third frame, the Black and Gold would own a 25-23 victory and head into the fourth run with a 2-1 advantage.

Set four remained tight until a trio of Appalachian errors would build Denver's lead to five (20-15). Despite back-to-back kills from Jess Keller (Swarthmore, Pa./Strath Haven) (23-20), a pair of Pioneer kills would seal DU's fourth frame victory (25-20).

The Apps maintained the momentum heading into the final set, which proved to be toe-to-toe all the way. A service ace, courtesy of Corrigan, would put Appalachian at a 13-11 advantage, forcing Denver to call a timeout. A kill from Muhle would keep the Pioneers in the game (13-12), but ultimately a pair of errors would cost them the match, giving Appalachian the 15-13 set and the overall victory.

The Mountaineers shot .163 as a team, led by Corrigan's team-high .270 hitting percentage, and dished out 85 total digs. Starters Corrigan and Keller both recorded two service aces, while Keller and Lauren Gray (Round Rock, Texas/Round Rock) each grabbed a block solo.

Beasley notched a team-high 17 kills for the Pioneers, who shot .265 combined, while Kate Acker recorded a match-high 33 digs. DU put up 11 blocks to Appalachian's nine to go along with 85 points to Appalachian's 76.
