Vintage video of Appalachian State University football games dating back as far as 60 years ago are now available for purchase on DVD.

The Appalachian IMG Sports Network has recovered game film reels from the 1950s, '60s, '70s and '80s and transferred the footage to DVD. Most of the archives are full games (although no sound, as the film was used for coaching purposes) but some partial games have been recovered as well.

DVDs of the vintage game film are available for purchase exclusively at appstatesports.com. In addition to the DVD, information about the game (including a full box score, if available) is included with each purchase.

“We’re excited and happy to be able to make this incredible footage available to Appalachian State fans,” associate athletics director for public affairs David Jackson said. “These films are truly a piece of Appalachian State history and would make a great addition to the video library of any Mountaineer fan.”
