

Bill would make it harder to light up at NC universities

Written by Lauren Ohnesorge
Tuesday, 12 June 2007 19:28

A measure approved by the House Health Committee would allow University of North Carolina system campuses to expand their no-smoking areas to include 100-foot buffer zones around university buildings. The bill's next stop is the full House.